History of Jainism - Wikipedia

Jainism springs with a solemn concern for the human soul in its relationship with the laws overseeing existence in the universe, with other living beings, and to its own eventual state in eternity. Firstly, it is a belief of the heart: the golden rule of which is Ahimsa or nonviolence in all parts of a personal, verbal, and physical.

Thus the history of Jainism goes back to 872 B. C. Neminatha as a Historical Figure. There seems to be no doubt about the existence of Jainism in the ninth century B. C. but the history of Jainism goes back even earlier than of Parsvanatha. The Jain record mentions the names of twenty two Tirthankaras before him.
